In collaboration with Made in Asia, in Toulouse, the Centre d'art le LAIT is presenting the show Repousser le tigre dans la montagne/Driving the tiger into the mountains, which brings together the works of eleven artists, coming from public collections.

The exhibition's title is borrowed from a Tai Chi Chuan movement, "Driving the tiger into the mountains", and pictorially expresses its overall idea, with the tiger conjuring up man and his imperfection, while the mountain is the place of philosophy and reflection.

The videos included in the exhibition question the human condition and introduce differing degrees of distance from reality, using different artistic avenues. The human being, as both consciousness and spirit, lies at the heart of the idea. The varied works explore landscapes, cities, work places, and areas for living and creation in ways stemming from documentaries about reality, the fantastic, the absurd, performance, poetry, and music...

Held at the Centre d'art, this show will also be presented in the form of a film programme at Le Quai des Savoirs in Toulouse.
